

TO BE RELEASED 11/09/13

UK Launch of T3 Triples Ping Pong is a smash hit

On Sunday 8th September table tennis brand T3 unveiled their revolutionary circular triples ping pong table for the first time in the UK at the annual Give it a Go Festival on Parliament Hill in Hampstead Heath, London.

Despite the tumultuous September weather, T3 Triples Ping Pong proved to be a showstopper. Crowds gathered for a chance to be the first to play the 3-a-side ping pong game. Pro ping-pongers and novices alike took each other on in teams of three, as the fast and fierce new game caught the attention of every passer-by.

Steve Lamb, 22, said

“This is such an addictive game; it’s got to be the future for Ping Pong.”

The 6-a-side version of the game “Chaos Theory” was also played and did exactly what it says on the tin – and balls were bouncing all over the place!

T3 Founder Digi Berry said:

“It was fantastic to see everyone without exception embrace the game... and I mean everyone! From little kids who could only just reach the table wanting to play with their parents to two 84 year old ex-table tennis fans who were thrilled with the new innovation. We knew that the new generation of social pingers love it, but to see non players, kids and veterans of the sport get involved was a big plus for me!”

The T3 Triples Ping Pong table is set to capture the social ping pong market’s imagination, and will be coming to a club near you very soon!

The T3 table, manufactured and designed in the UK, comes in many shapes and sizes, to suit your ping pong needs. From team building in the office, to parties and events, they’ve thought of everything. The original T3 is black and white in design, constructed of state-of-the-art high density fibreboard, engineered plywood and steel with a smooth scratch resistant painted surface to guarantee the perfect bounce. Portable and practical, the table can be packed away for easy storage, and prices start from £950.

The net itself is cleverly designed to enhance the triples game. Raised at the sides with a sloping gradient, the net increases the sense of competition and adds to the challenge. Constructed of wood with a unique pattern of holes to make it transparent, the net smoothly slots into the centre of the table. Whether you want to play at your local sports club, at school, at university, at the pub, or outside in the park, T3 has many designs to fit every taste. And if you can’t find exactly what you’re looking for, or want your own customised triples table with Perspex up lit neon net – Go to www.t3pingpong.com to find out more.

Notes to editors

More about triples:

Ping Pong or Wiff Waff originated in England in the 1880s, when it was played as a post-dinner party game on the dining tables of the upper classes. With social play clearly on the rise around the UK, the T3Triples Ping Pong table brings back those values for all to experience. More players mean more energy and excitement, and the dynamic circular shape revives the meaning of 'social'; it brings people together.

The triples (3-a-side) version of table tennis was invented in New Zealand in 1979 and, up until now, was only played in Australia as a serious sports addition to traditional table tennis. Six players compete in two teams of three around a circular table. Its unusual design and specially constructed nets are the foundations of a game which can be fast and fierce. Triples ping pong takes on the same game and converts it into a simpler more social and fun variation, still allowing players a far greater range of shot directions, exciting angles and longer spectacular rallies. The table can even accommodate 12 players if required (3-a-side with one ball in play or 6-a-side with two different coloured balls in play).

For further information on T3 or the triples table, visit www.t3pingpong.com or contact Kath Lewis at T3

T: 020 7404 9594

E: kath@t3pingpong.com